POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

If California wants its rightful place in the sun, industrially, when this war is done, California must fight for it—and the fight must be won in the hard-boiled halls of politics, rather than by old-fashioned, straight-forward methods of competition!

That conclusion, half-formed as a result of the East's growing opposition to the program of industrialization in the West, has become inescapable since the action of War Production Board Director Donald M. Nelson in rejecting a proposal that at least one West Coast representative be given a place on the WPB Steel Industry Advisory Board.

The steel industry, of course, must be the base of any permanent heavy industry program in the West—and the action of the WPB in refusing recognition to the West Coast, taken in conjunction with the recent decision of WPB officials against launching the proposed huge new steel plant at Geneva, Utah, is the tip-off that Eastern industrialists are outpressuring the West in the Nation's capital.

The tremendous contribution that the West in general—and California in particular—has made, and is making, in winning the war in the heavy industry field has brought this state to either No. 1 or No. 2 position among all the industrial states of the Nation. But that, instead of winning us friends and recognition in Washington, seems to have had the opposite effect; it has alarmed Eastern industrialists, with their heavy investments in Eastern industries, and there is a determined drive on to strip this state, and the West, of their new industries when peace comes.

The political significance of this economic struggle between the old East and the new West—if the West is in a fighting mood, and determined to hold and extend its gains—will be sharply evident in both the Republican and Democratic National Conventions. For about the only way that California can be assured of fair treatment in the national industrial picture is to put the various candidates for President (and lesser offices) on record while they are still candidates, and in vital need of California's votes in the political conventions and the elections to follow.

Politically, this state is now one of "the big five," with the power to make its influence felt even against New York and Pennsylvania and Illinois, if California representatives recognize that the state's industrial development is dependent on a judicious use of its political proxies. But thus far California and the West have had little or Club Women Hear Pvt. Murphy Talk On Al-Can Hwy.

Pvt. Frances J. Murphy, son of sheriff Dan Murphy of San Francisco, and a senior student in civil engineering with the Army specialized training program at Santa Clara University, was the speaker of the meeting of the Country Woman's club, Monday, Jan. 3.

The Al-Can highway was the topic for the afternoon and Pvt. Murphy explained in detail the actual building of the road by army engineers, telling of the difficulties encountered and overcome, with the route finally determined by aerial photographs. "With the 1645 mile road opening up the beauty and riches of Alaska to the United States," said Pvt. Murphy, "I can see prosperity and happiness offered to Americans after the war." During the war, of course, the road is very important to transportation of supplies and munitions.

The musical part of the program was presented by Miss Margaret Allison, pianist, graduate and member of the faculty of Beaver college, Pennsylvania, with a background of two years European study under Tobias Matthay and also two years experience coaching under Percy Granger. She played Brahms "Lullaby" as arranged by Percy Granger and "Un Sospiro" by Liszt. As an encore, in response to lengthy applause, she played Percy Granger's well-known "In a Country Garden."

During the business session under the direction of Mrs. W. H. Van Dyke, president, money was voted for the continuance of service at the U. S. O. Hut and a donation was voted for the Campbell Youth Council.

Due to illness, there was a change made in the committee and those who served were Mesdames M. A. Ross, C. W. Sutter, G. W. Burrow, A. W. Johnson, Frank Blair and Miss Jessie Lewis.

High P.-T. A. to Meet Wednesday

The regular meeting of the Campbell Union High School P.-T. A. unit will be held on next Wednesday, Jan. 12, in the Little Theatre at 2:30.

All members, parents and friends of the association are cordially invited to attend.

The executive board will hold its regular meeting prior to the unit meeting.

no recognition in the President's cabinet or in other key posts in Washington—and they can't expect that recognition until they are willing to conduct a vigorous fight to get it.

To win industrial dominance, no matter how much we may be entitled to it, we must win political recognition. And the sooner we realize that the sooner we will have a chance of measuring up to our great destiny.

- Items In Brief -

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Ross of McCoy avenue observed their sixty-second wedding anniversary Wednesday, Jan. 5. Owing to the frail health of Mr. Ross their friends were unable to extend felicitations in person.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd C. Shank have received word of the birth of a granddaughter in Lynn, Mass., on Dec. 29. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Poor, Jr., (she was Mary Shank) have named their new daughter Susan Poor.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weaver and daughters, Peggy and Dianne, spent the week-end with relatives in Fresno.

SON DIES IN PLANE CRASH

Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Daniels of Everett avenue, received word of the death of their son, Grover C., known as "G. C." in the crash of a plane Sunday near San Diego.

They visited San Diego but learned nothing further and returned Wednesday evening. This morning a telegram notified them that his body had been found in a canyon.

He was a naval aerial gunner but the plane crashed on land.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Raffanti spent the week-end with relatives in San Francisco returning Sunday bringing home their son Robert, who had spent the holiday vacation there.

The entire community extends sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Lanphear in their hour of anxiety and hope that later information may report him safe in a prison camp.

More Workers On Surgical Dressings Needed

A rush demand for surgical dressings and hence a need for all volunteers to rally again has been announced by the San Jose chapter, American Red Cross of which the Campbell unit is a branch.

Owing to the interruption of the holidays and the epidemic of colds and flu, there is an overlap of 1943 work into 1944 and now the 1944 quotas are arriving and the 1943 work must be completed first.

Mrs. F. Wilbur Mitchell, Campbell unit chairman of surgical dressings reports that there was a great falling off of workers during December, with a gain this past week, but they still need more help.

A lady in Campbell recently entertained two service men just returned from Tarawa who said there were not enough surgical dressings during the attack and capture of that island to properly care for all the wounded, which is certainly an incentive for increased effort.

Just to show the number of dressings needed, one rush order from the government was for 180,000,000 last March. Volunteers the country over shipped 181,135,800 on the date set. As the war progresses on all fronts the orders become larger and larger.

UNSUNG ARMY

There's an unsung army in the U. S. A. of gallant men and women, who wear neither the G. I. garb of the armed forces nor the work clothes of war plants; who boast no campaign ribbons, get no over-time and make no headlines—the "lost battalions" of Uncle Sam's all-but-forgotten white collar army.

There are 15,000,000 in this vast, vital army—15,000,000 men and women in the professions, in the arts and sciences, in offices and small stores, caught in the No Man's Land of soaring living costs and fixed incomes, but still battling quietly, if a bit grimly, to keep their end in the battle for freedom.

Last week, Congress discovered them, when reports filtered in that thousands in this unsung, uncomplaining army are threatened with "impaired health and security." Actually, many have been disabled—either physically or economically—and the majority have managed to survive only at great personal sacrifice. But reports also show that they are still buying war bonds; still working long hours, with few holidays, in their over-loaded jobs and professions—and that very few, indeed, have had any wage boost since Pearl Harbor, or have much chance of getting one.

We have little hope that Congress either will or can do anything to fatten the paychecks of the army whose emblem is a frayed white collar. Because they are mostly rugged individualists and unorganized; they have no lobby at Washington, nor no bargaining agent at home. But when Congress is considering letting down the barriers to wage boosts for other more militant groups, it might well think of them. For every wage increase granted every other group increases the strain on this forgotten group, and reduces the buying power of their pre-war incomes, and every man enjoying boom war earnings might well think of them—before he asks for more.

FOOD IN 1944

Did you eat 130 pounds of meat in 1943? Well, according to government experts, you did. And these experts say that in 1944 you will eat more meat—one pound more to be exact—if their expectations are fulfilled. You will not have a wide variety of meat—pork will make up about half of it. In fact, the whole food outlook for this year is not one to delight those who "go" for a wide choice of edibles.

But for the "solid" eaters—those who enjoy potatoes, beans, cereals, and the like—there will be just about all they can eat. Maybe more. In other words, it looks like quantity, but little variety.

All this means that if Mrs. America is to avoid having bored appetites at the dinner table, she will have to dig into her bag of cooking tricks or into a cook book for new and different ways of "dishing it out."

Three quarters of our crops will be available for civilian consumption. Our farmers will do their part in planting extensively. Our food distribution machinery operating through the swift, economical methods will carry the food to outlets the nation over. After that it will be up to Mrs. America.

But we can be confident that she will be equal to the occasion. As an average American, she does not lack ingenuity, so undoubtedly she will come out of the kitchen with some interesting dishes to "please the palate."

Jack Aldrich Is Now Lieutenant

First Lieut. Jack W. Aldrich of Campbell, who was recently assigned to a Marine fighter squadron commanded by Major Joe Foss, America's leading ace, has been promoted to his present rank by the United States Marine Corps.

He is on duty with the Leatherneck flyers at the Marine Corps Air Station at Santa Barbara.

Lieutenant Aldrich, a former student at San Jose State college, was one of those hand picked for the squadron by Major Foss, credited with 26 Jap planes in the South Pacific.

Aldrich is the son of Mrs. Grace E. Aldrich who lives on Route 1, Campbell.

The registration of public housing rental-dwelling units by F. P. H. A. is required by OPA rent regulations. DP-1 is for housing accommodations, and DP-2 for trailers, dormitories, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Souto, North Central avenue enjoyed a five-day visit over the New Year with Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Cramer of Santa Rosa, former Campbellites and with relatives of Mr. Souto in Vallejo. They report a pleasant visit but cold and really rainy weather.

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

"Under Cover" by John Roy Carlson.

Walter Winchell spoke of it. In fact, he has demanded that all Americans read "Under Cover." Ever since it came off the press, yet before it appeared in book form he screamed about it. The power there is within its pages, he yelled about—each broadcast he mentions it—"Under Cover."

What is "Under Cover?"

It is the amazing revelation of how Axis agents and our enemies within are now plotting to destroy the United States.

Clifton Fadiman says: "Under Cover" is a tremendously fascinating personal adventure story. But it is more important as the first completely documented account of the enemy within. It is the duty of every true American to read Mr. Carlson. If enough of us read him perhaps we can avert a civil war which American Fascists with the help of Axis agents, are deliberately preparing.

The New York Times says: "This book is of sensational importance to every man and woman who hopes for victory. . . . Of the hundreds of persons he exposes, most are still free and carrying on their dirty work. Those who neglected to take them seriously enough in Europe are dead, in concentration camps, in hiding or in exile."

The Book-of-the-Month club News says: "Single-handedly, John Roy Carlson has done more to expose un-American activities than the entire Dies Committee. This book is a 'Who's Who' of demagogues, crackpots, patrioteering racketeers, and Axis agents. There are no sacred cows in Mr. Carlson's courageous report. It names names which will astonish the uninited."

Cecil Brown, Louis Adamic, Carl Van Doren and many other well known personages in the field of writing news today make statements parallel with those mentioned above.

It is a duty, an American duty, each of us can do. Don't miss it.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR FROM ALL THE BOYS

It's a long way back to California From the shores of Italy. But I'll be back—and I'll take a crack At Rommel on the way. There's a rose covered cottage on Los Gatos road That I dream of every night 'Way back home in California. In the "Valley of Heart's Delight."

It's a long way back to California From 'way down' near Raboul. But I won't stop—if I have to hop. Each hop makes Tojo Howl. There's a peach back home in Saratoga

And she'll wait for me I know. So I'll be back to California When I've wiped off Tokio.

It's a long way back to California From the frozen isle Attu Where a "buddy's" chin—needs tucking in. Each time he speaks to you. But I know a warm sunny patio In a house near San Jose. 'Way back home in California Where I'll be warm some day.

It's a long way back to California From England's foggy shores Where the mists seep in to the very skin. And when it rains—it pours. There's a little house on Sunnyside Full of laughter, love and cheer. So I'll be back to California Where the skies are blue and clear.

Yes! We'll be back to California. To that "Vale of Heart's Delight" Where the hills unfold, the poppies gold. And in sun or pale moonlight It's paradise. At blossom time The perfume is a prayer. God Bless California! We've left our hearts back there.

July 2: This has been my Sunday off. Outside a bitterly cold wind whistles about the house, and occasionally there is a little roar of thunder. It's quite weird. But aren't I thankful for food and clothes and warmth! There are so many all about me who ordinarily have not enough of anything to eat! It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good, and this cold wind serves to cut down fighting cases tonight with the result that everything is quiet down stairs. (A blessed storm because it gave the Health Centre nurses a vacation from the usual Sunday work of "sewing up heads" and all because it prevented the black man from getting at the white man's "Kill-ee-me-quick-ee."—A. B. C.)

September 5: This evening has been hectic for it is moonlight and the first Sunday of the month. When we add drink to that combination, the picture is complete for mischief! We have also, this week, had another blitz of babies. Eight of our own booked cases and one unbooked case which was awful—this case which was awful—ing, but it is most worth while.

May 9, 1943: Scarcely had we finished tea, and Sister had gone, when I heard a great racket downstairs and going down to see what was up, came face to face with a man very badly stabbed, and absolutely insane with drink and rage. In a few moments it was quite obvious that only the police could handle him, so I telephoned up to the police station where they said they would send someone down shortly. In the meantime, the patient was bleeding so much that I tried to put a temporary bandage on the hole in his neck, but he simply flung me off, spit on my hands, and acted as if he would bite me at any moment. We managed to get some sort of bandage with an antiseptic on it, onto the one wound but failed to do anything to the great gash on his arms where the muscle was bursting through the four-inch cut and squirting blood all over the place. Our perfectly respectable room looked like a shambles before the police came at long last, and took him away to the hospital where they could anaesthetise him or put him in a strait-jacket. I have never before had to call the police for protection. The man's language was a profane mess of Bantu and English! It's a great life if you don't weaken!

ELECTRICITY
gives her the strength of 90 HORSES

LESS THAN A YEAR AGO
her hands had operated no
machine more powerful than a home vacuum cleaner. Now she, and 350,000 other California women, active, keen and alert, are doing man-sized jobs in the war plants.

Huge cranes, operated entirely by women, hoist heavy gun barrels and gun mounts, women's hands run drill and punch presses, pull levers, press buttons in scores of noisy, war-busy manufacturing plants.

Electricity is the power for their work and with amazing aptitude these 350,000 women are operating intricate machines as easily as they run their home washing machine or kitchen mixer.

When this war ends, electricity will again work for these women in their homes. It will again do the work of housekeeping by means of cheap and easy-to-use electric appliances.

We salute California's women war workers. They are hastening the Day when Victory and Unconditional Surrender bring Peace to the World.
